A letter from our rambunctious, reveler extraordinaire Riley.

Dear Folks,

I am missing the homeland but am experiencing the world. As Grandpa used to write in his letters from penitentiary, "Life is lived out there." Since my last letter some time ago I have been here and there and everywhere – always a day ahead of the mob, I mean crowd.

In Europe, I joined up with a Greek Merchant Bank selling government bonds – a great opportunity for a career – finally a 10-12:30 job. The slight dip in the economic fortunes of the land of Plato, Socrates, and those guys from Blackberry necessitated my departure to friendly shores before protesters burned down our bank. A friend, who I have now blocked from my FACEBOOK convinced me to invest in a shrimp boat running out of Louisiana. Wouldn't you know a little oil leak threw a wrench in the plans for shrimp domination. I would have stayed longer in the Cajun Country but the board of health disagreed with our advertising slogan "Our Shrimp Come Pre-Oiled. Just Need Deep Frying". The Fire Department was not too pleased and was asking questions concerning the veracity of our insurance claim for our burned out trawler. I hopped the first Amtrak out of Baton Rouge, and headed for the new adventure - got as far as Talahassee before the conductor noticed my lack of ticket.

As the oil had not yet drifted that far east I made a few shillings selling t-shirts on the beach in Fort Lauderdale and caught up on Coronation Street, borrowing a satellite signal and a beach front condo from an absentee Canuck owner (Mum: Not a good idea to leave your spare key under the door mat). The arrival of the snowbirds meant it was time for me to flee, I mean move on. I considered heading south to the Caribbean but my passage was not possible – (I should have considered the trip while I still had a boat.) I used the volunteer transport method, and thumbed my way all the way north to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

I would have cleaned up in this great American city. I invested the last of my cash in Super Bowl Champion shirts expecting the Steelers to win the big game. Who knew – the Packers would weld shut the Steel Curtain? Alas, my shirts went up in flames for insurance claims as did my dreams. I boarded a Megabus for one dollar and headed for the Big Apple. My vagabond shoes are longing to stray. I want to wake up in a city that does not sleep. (the subway and car noise are non-stop). As you always say Dad on the way home from the pub, it takes character to get up after falling. I'm a little blue, and missing the little town but I'll make a brand new start of it – in old New York. If I can make it there, I'll make it anywhere. A friend has offered me a job selling high end purses on Canal Street – sounds a little questionable but I like the retail trade and the fresh air.

I'm off for now. Wish everyone the best and hopefully I'll make it home for summer.

With vim and vigour (and vinegar on your fish and chips) keep smiling, keep laughing, keep loving, keep living. That's Riley's spin on life. Here at Riley's, customer comfort and enjoyment of the moment are the main offerings, everything else is á la carte. Sit back and enjoy the Life of Riley at your local Riley's Olde Town Pub in Peterborough or Oshawa. As for Riley, he's off again and promises to scribble a few words or e-mail whenever the opportunity affords itself. Our favourite lout promises more adventures.
